Survey Winners Go Green with Solar Hot Water Heating Systems

Plumb Works chose 5 winners from our online survey participants. The winners of our Under the Sun Deal can install solar hot water systems at cost and help to make Atlanta green.

One winner was John Henson with WelbornHenson, who design and manufacture custom furniture and architectural millwork. John hired Plumb Works for an extensive bathroom and plumbing system installation last year. "They showed up on time, were efficient, effective, and knew their business," Henson said.

Henson is not only considering installing the solar water heating system, but is also making plans for a radiant floor heated with solar panels. We love to help our customers Go Green!

Last year the state legislature approved a 35 percent tax credit for homeowners and businesses that install solar energy systems. Congress not only extended a 30 percent solar tax credit for eight years, but also eliminated the $2,000 cap on the tax credit. So now you can go green and save money on your taxes!

Are You Able to Shut Off the Water to Your House in an Emergency?

The City of Atlanta is nearly finished installing automated meters throughout the city. One big change is that the new meters are locked, meaning customers will have to rely on secondary water shut-off valves to turn off their water.

In fact, the GA State Plumbing Code requires that homeowners have a secondary shut-off valve on their property, although many older homes do not.

The city is encouraging all customers to hire a licensed plumber to install a shut-off valve, if they do not already have one. When a pipe freezes or bursts, having access to a shut-off valve can save gallons of water and a considerable amount of money.
